President Trump has expressed interest in buying Greenland, and although the Greenland Foreign Office has declared on Twitter that they are "open to business, not to sell", it is worth asking: how do you buy a country, anyway?First of all, let's take a look at why our President is interested in buying Greenland, which is now an autonomous Danish territory. As the Wall Street Journal reports: U.S. officials consider Greenland important to U.S. national security interests. A ten-year defence treaty between Denmark and the United States gives the U.S. military virtually unlimited rights in Greenland to the U.S. northernmost airbase, Thule Air Base. Located 750 miles north of the Arctic Circle, it includes a radar station that is part of an early warning system for U.S. ballistic missiles. The base is also used by the United States Air Force Space Command and the North American Aerospace Defense Command.So, okay, the takeover of Greenland could have a national security value, not to mention preventing other countries, such as China, from building an economic or military presence on the island. However, the real motivation may have more to do with creating an inheritance: [The source] believed the president was interested in the idea because of the island's natural resources and because it would give him an inheritance similar to President Dás admitting Alaska to the United States as a state. Wight Eisenhower. 1867 for $7.2 million, so this kind of land transfer has a history. The U.S. bought the Virgin Islands from Denmark in 1917 for $25 million, implying that if Denmark had not been willing to sell, it would have had to occupy the islands "to avoid their capture by Germany", so you can understand why Trump might wonder if the Danes would be interested in concluding another deal. As The Atlantic explains:(...) the decision is not even up to Denmark. Legally and morally, the island's 56,000 inhabitants, most of whom are Greenlandic Inuit, have the right to decide on any international union their state joins.Furthermore, Greenland is very, very socialist; its citizens share ownership of land and government and provide free medical care to everyone. To quote The Atlantic again: President Trump will have to commit to supporting all these programs if he hopes to add Greenland to the Union. And so the United States will get a state different from all the others: a state where land ownership is illegal, where private health care is banned, and where most of the big industries are state-owned.If our I wonder how many of us would be tempted to move. Traditionally, this kind of thing requires a lot of discussions between the two governments involved, a huge pile of money, and occasionally a veiled threat, that is, if the host government is not interested in the territory can fall into new ownership the old-fashioned way. I'm pretty sure we won't invade Greenland. I don't even think we're going to make an offer on Greenland, honestly. And if our president really wants to build his legacy by creating a new state, I heard Puerto Rico and/or the District of Columbia might be interested. Alot Travel > Themes Free land, home of the brave. Dreamland. Everybody wants to live in the States, right? Okay, well, everyone thinks Americans are great. Maybe not. I guess it's really impossible to please everyone. When nations hate Americans for one reason or another, it can cause some tension and problems. American ideals, politicians, habits, attitudes, and a plethora of other subjects can lead to members of a foreign country harbouring a deep hatred or mistrust of America, and honestly, some of these feelings are justified. Today, let's take a look at some of those countries that can't stand the Americans. Maybe these shouldn't be near the top of your vacation bucket list! Note: All statistics included in this article are from the Pew Research Center, a non-partisan public opinion research organization, and several other sources, all of which are listed throughout. Debt Greece finds it difficult to embrace any American message of hope, as shown by the 63% unfavorable on Pew's search. A recurring complaint among the Greek natives has to do with public alcohol. They tend to look down for people who let themselves go in public - which is exactly what a lot of American tourists do when they visit. U.S. support for Hosni Mubarak, and a failure to do anything about the overthrow of the Muslim Brotherhood, leaves 85% of those interviewed by Pew Research with an unfavourable view of Americans. This, along with cuts in foreign aid to Egypt, led to this massive number of disapproval for the United States. The Germans have a bit of a love/hate relationship with the United States. Despite an unfavourable rating of 70%, many Germans want to be admired by the Americans at the same time. Like many countries, Germany has the perception that Americans tend to be lazy, disorderly and overly patriotic. Which is true enough, but he is particularly rich coming from a country with its history of extreme patriotism. . Since 1979, when Iran took over the US embassy in Tehran, there has been no lost love between Iranians and Americans, reflecting a 61% disapproval rating according to MarketWatch. More recently, the government of Iran has (cynically, some suggest) pointed to our current protests and civil unrest as more evidence of our wickedness. Strangely, they don't have much to say about their humanitarian ... France has always had a love / hate relationship with the United States, but due to what we have mischieved the Coronavirus pandemic and uncertain actions of previous elections, France is released with a rating disapproval of the 67% for United States To mention, if you ever visit France yourself, you will not feel welcomed, no matter how much you try because the French people have a general disgust for everyone. The neighbor of Egypt seems to reflect a similar vision in the same survey - the ratings of American favorability have dropped 13 points since 2009, leaving 85% with an unfavorable view of the u.s. Strangely enough, the public sentiment is disagree with the official position of the government. Jordan is considered one of America's closest mediorian allies, and the Jordanian government is explicitly pro-America. Italy was the first country of great news in the Western world to close due to Covid. However, the United States did not follow the example, and now Italians consider us incompetent as a nation and gave the United States a 55% disapproval assessment. When Italians were blocked in their small apartments in the city for months, we had Karens who ran around wearing a simple facial mask. Honestly we don't blame them to have no approving us. A huge influx of Syrian refugees without significant US assistance can contribute to the unfavorable view of 73% of America reflected in a PEW research survey. When the previous President Barack Obama visited the 2009 country, he was welcomed by the protesters who call America the enemy of the people of the world and telling him to go home. The United Kingdom is another nation we have always had a love / hate relationship with, you know, the American revolution and everything, but then later on all alliances in wars and things in the world. However, due to America's actions in 2020, we returned to the odium territory of the udo. Who gave us a 55% disapproval score in general. Speaking of relationships of love / hate, Japan! Although it seemed that the Japanese were on all the afternoon thing (oops). We still dropped into their ugly thanks in 2020. With what poor everything went in 2020 for the United States, the Japanese now evaluate like us An entire with a 54% disapproval score. To look at the positive side, this is just a little more than the country's half! The United States is perceived as in support of Israel fully, which do not sit well with the Palestinians "as reflected in an unfavorable score from 66% to 72% on more surveys. While this is a bit of a fall from the high duration Of all time 80%, it is unlikely that will fall much lower, until the United States is perceived to be an ally of Israel. Relations with Russia were cold from the cold war. US The opposition to the His intervention in Ukraine could contribute to an unfavorable score of 71% in the PEW survey. Having said that, Russia was more than arranged at the lady (or something worse) with the United States in recent years since the election of Donald Trump. Hopefully things came to a friendly end now that Trump is out of office. Belarus is friendly with Russia and seems to host uncomfortable feelings on the United States. There, 69% disapprove of Americans. However, Belarus 'poor'Perspectives can also play a role. Studies have found that countries that are struggling economically are more likely to have an unfavorable opinion in the United States. Since 2007, Congress has placed the conditions on annual aid to Lebanon. These decisions led to an unfavorable assessment of 57% of Americans in the country. However, like other countries in this list, the United States is not the only object of Lebanon's disapproval. The European Union in general and Germany also have dismal evaluations. Most Argentines do not trust the United States to act responsibly in the world and give America a 57% unfavorable rating, according to The Argentine Post. Many of these animosities have to do with the fact that people in the United States often refer to themselves as Americans. But the Argentines are American, too. According to MarketWatch, Austria has a 55% disapproval rating of the United States. And a lot of that feeling is reduced to something rather silly... fast food. Apparently many Americans are not too adventurous when it comes to Austrian cuisine, which brings locals to think that we are all afraid to try something new. Slovenians have a negative view of 54% of the United States, especially because they do not approve its leadership. However, this did not change much when Melania Trump, who was born in the country, served as First Lady. However, while the Slovenian perceptions of the Americans could be colored by our leadership today, there is another possible explanation - the close relationship of Slovenia with the Soviet Union. Denmark is one of the most peaceful countries in the world, and that is probably why they hate us so much. In the Pew Research survey, Danes gave us a terrible 65% disapproval rating. Copenhagen can be where many American quarantine long be, but do not want our aggressive policy to spoil their peace and tranquility. The anti-Islamic message in the Muslim Innocence propaganda film posted online by a resident of the United States, contributes to the unfavorable vision of 47% of America in Tunisia. That said, American relations with Tunisia in the past were hot sometimes, so there is no reason to think that this relationship cannot be restored. Much of the U.S. attention has focused on Pakistan since September 11, and there is a continuous military presence that has brought 59% to 65% of Pakistani people who have unfavorable views of the Americans. Once found and killed Osama Bin Laden in Pakistan, the feeling towards the United States has worsened in the country. With a 47% unfavorable score, only a little more than half of this South American country sees the United States in a positive light. This can cause problems for America later, like the Department of the United States considers Chile one of the "most experienced partners in the United States in Latin America". 64% of Australia's unfavourable rating can mainly be cast to their difference of President George W. Bush and President Donald Trump. Most Australians believe they believeThe ambition of Americans for power feeds both white nationalists and anti-racist regulations in a confused medley of different opinions that fight for the domain. The disapproval rating of 51% of our Northern neighbors derives mainly from their contempt by Donald Trump and by the policies of him who collide directly with his own country. But this does not tell the whole story. Interesting, anti-Americanism was a rhetorical strategy that Canadian politicians used to win the elections from at least 1891. How much hate is genuine and how right to build political clot? Most of the Dutch public, 69.% consider Americans such as ignorant extremists, fats, racists and paranoids. But, they claim the hope that the United States is not just a home for these negative stereotypes. Many Dutch citizens hope that these negatives will be folded into the dark holes that have crawled since Trump is out of office. With a unfavorability of 65%, Mexico is not a fan of America. Once again, due to Donald Trump, and Xenophobic trends of him. However, blaming everything on Trump could give him too much credit. The United States report with Mexico has always been rocky from the battles for the territory in 1800. This mainly Muslim country saw a great escalation in negative perception, with a 54% disapproval assessment. That being said, it seems that this small town does not have a favorable view of many places. Other areas, such as Europe and China have seen the approval numbers in Tajikistan. Storing mainly by wars that have devastated this country, 67% disapproval of Iraq is not difficult to understand. Belgium has a complex history and different national languages, which is proof of their general lover with different cultures and languages, except when it comes to Americans. Belgium gave us a terrible disapproval assessment of 75%! This means that 75% of the Belgian people who participated in this disapprove of America's 2020 studio 2020. What a shame. Similar to Canada, up to the disapproval score of 65.% Sweden sees the Americans liberal as to have a service of Swedená € as they consider it as a land of liberal wonders. Donald Trump is also strongly blamed with the alienation of this democratic country as well. You will find that he actually caused a lot of cracks in this list to worsen the presidency of him. The management of the coronavirus of the state joined in 2020 and the Trump administration not risen are at least in part to blame for 58% of disapproval of Spain, to say the least. They are not only in this disapproval, as it seems that most of Europe is in a strong agreement with Spain on this. Over the last few years, the increase in commercial problems with China has brought A disapproval rating of 49%. The recent commercial wars and the explosion of the Coronavirus from Wuhan have certainly not helped improve relations between the two countries at the present time.
