

I'm not a robot

DC Universe had a rough 2022, but they have a lot of movies to deliver this year. Though the future of most DC films is in jeopardy, DC has some big films in the pipeline, which includes some big-budget films. After Walter Hamada left the DC Films' head role, James Gunn and Peter Safran took over the role of the new co-CEOs. They want to direct this universe in a different direction. The co-CEOs have already canceled Man of Steel 2 and Wonder Woman 3, which were in development status. They also decided to end the Rock's Black Adam's involvement in any future DC project. Even though these heavy changes, all the upcoming films of 2023 have faced cancellation. As per previous reports, four films are coming in 2023 from DC Studios and will be the previous franchise's continuity. But Gunn has also confirmed that a few may be part of his new version of DCU. DC FilmsRelease DateShazam: Fury of the GodsMarch 17, 2023The FlashJune 16, 2023Blue BeetleAugust 18, 2023Aquaman and the Lost KingdomDecember 25, 2023Joker: Folie à DeuxOctober 4, 2024 Shazam: Fury of the GodsMarch 17, 2023 Zachery Levi will reprise his role of Shazam again following the first film's success. The plot of the superhero movie will focus on Billy Batson and the Shazam Family understanding more of their powers. But they struggled when they faced the Daughters of Atlas – Hespera and Kalypso. The duo has the intention of destroying the whole world. In this film, Rachel Zegler will also feature as a Daughter of Atlas to assist Shazam and his family. However, Black Adam will not feature in this film after the Rock leaves the DCU. The film will hit the theatres on March 17, 2023. Warner Bros. has a big expectation from this particular as they compare this film to the standard of Nolan's "The Dark Knight". Notorious Ezra Miller will return to the role of Barry Allen, aka the Flash as the main protagonist. See also 25 Highest Grossing Movies Of All Time 2023The story will focus on "The Flashpoint" storyline from comics when Barry Allen puts the whole DC Universe in danger in his attempt to save his mother. There is also an animated film based on the same storyline with high ratings. This will be a multiverse journey for Barry Allen, and many superheroes are supposed to feature in this film. In an interview, Miller confirmed that there will be two versions of Flash in film. He will play both of them. The actor also revealed: "Yes, it constitutes, I think, a huge and powerful arc in DC. I think this story precipitates a lot of change for Barry Allen in more ways than one. And I think it carries him from being sort of the person who we met in the Justice League films. It takes him from that place of a young person, who's come into his powers, but doesn't quite know how to manifest them, who's joined a legion of superheroes but doesn't quite know his place in the context of it." After several delays and legal issues with Ezra Miller, The Flash will hit the theatres on June 16, 2023. This is also the second film of DC. Blue BeetleAugust 18, 2023 This film will center around Jaime Reyes's version of Blue Beetle and will be the 14th film of old DC Continuity. Angel Manuel Soto will be directing this film; there was never any film on Blue Beetle. Xolo Maridueña will play the role of the protagonist of the plot. Jaime Reyes is just a regular high schooler from Texas. But his fate turned upside down when he got in touch with the Scarab. This alien tech granted him unbelievable tech powers, which he decided to use to protect the innocents. Despite many rumors, Gunn has confirmed the film is coming on the previously scheduled date of August 18, 2023. The film was first planned for the HBO Max release, but it will now release in the theatres. But Blue Beetle's fate of surviving Gunn's new DCU is still unknown. See also Top 10 Japanese Movies On Netflix Aquaman and the Lost KingdomDecember 25, 2023 There are not many details available here. However, the lost kingdom was first teased in the Aquaman 1 film. It will be the journey of Arthur Curry, aka Aquaman's journey to find the Lost Kingdom. Aquaman 1 did a massive business at Box Office after reaching the 1 billion milestone. Swedish actor Dolph Lundgren who plays King Versus is optimistic about the upcoming film. The actor previously revealed: "That whole picture is just a class act. I think [Aquaman 2] is better. I think the script is stronger, and it's more exciting." The actor also praised the technology used in the film. Lundgren praised: "The technology has moved forward in four years, so I was pleased to be a part of it. James Wan is just going to bring everybody away again with this tremendous work that he creates." Patrick Wilson, who plays the evil half-brother of Arthur Curry, Ocean Master, also gave a few details about the film. The actor revealed the Collider: "storyline is... not going to get into that. But James loves to pick and choose from his mind and comics and how we bring in certain elements. Those little moments that even... I don't know; pick one in the gladiator sequence. There's an octopus playing drums." This film also faced much delay, and the current release date of the film is December 25, 2023. Joker: Folie à DeuxOctober 4, 2024 After becoming the 2nd highest-grosser in DC movies, Joaquin Phoenix, starring Joker, is returning for its sequel in 2024. The story will follow Joker's journey with his love interest Harley Quinn. The plot of this film will primarily focus on Joker and his partner in crime, Harley Quinn's romantic relationship in a musical manner. Reports and insights from Hollywood suggest that the film will be a musical drama film with Lady Gaga playing the role of Dr. Harleen Quinzel, aka Harley Quinn. Joker was an experimental film from Warner Bros. But it ended up becoming one of the best films in 2019. The official title of the Joker film's sequel is Joker: Folie à Deux. The film will hit the theatres on October 4, 2024. However, Joker and his dark R-rated universe is neither part of DCC nor Matt Reeves's Batman universe. See also Oppenheimer: Release Date, Cast, Trailer and StoryThe Cancelled and Unannounced DCU Projects These 4 films are officially confirmed as they will all hit the theatres this year. But Man of Steel 2 and Wonder Woman 3 are not coming as Gunn has decided to cancel those films. Gunn has a new vision of how to move this cinematic universe forward for the next 10 years. Those two films do not fit into his slots. Previously Warner Brothers did cancel Batgirl movie just days before its release on HBO Max. That shocked the fans a lot. The Upcoming In-Development DC Films Multiple projects are going on behind the scenes. A Green Lantern tv series, an untitled Superman film from James Gunn, and DC's first series are all in the pipeline. Warner Brothers have recently officially confirmed all the upcoming films in development. Some upcoming DC projects have also been done to that list. This is exciting news for comic book fans as well. These films include Superman, Batman 2, Constantine 2, and Black Hawk, which are in development. Matt Reeves has recently revealed that he will have a meeting with James Gunn over building a new separate universe around Pattison's Batman and his Gotham. On the other hand, Gunn is also keen to introduce another version of Batman to his new DCU. However, both versions of Batman will carry their journey in separate universes with different characters. If Constantine returns after so long, fans will wait to see how it will become part of Gunn's DCU. Constantine may also introduce the fan-favorite team Justice League Dark to the DCU, a long-awaited project. James Gunn and Peter Safran have promised to disclose all the upcoming projects this month. Only then fans can only guess where the DCU heading to. I'm Sayantan, a versatile writer with a passion for technology and entertainment. I have written extensively on the intersection of these two worlds, covering everything from the latest entertainment technology to how technology is shaping the future of entertainment. With over 7 years of experience in the industry, I have a deep understanding of the technology and the entertainment industry. The past year was quite shaky for the titles following the merger of Warner Bros. Discovery and the change in leadership in the studio but that doesn't mean there would not be any DC releases coming out in 2023! Check out all the shows and movies that they are arriving this year and where to watch it!All The DC Movies And TV Shows Coming Out in 2023 Credit: Warner Bros.All The DC Movies And TV Shows Coming Out in 2023While Warner Bros. Discovery has been under some major revamp in 2022, this year remains to boast a flourishing amount of titles for DC. There were a lot of titles that said goodbye to everyone after not being renewed or cancelled but the remainder of those which are still active would be coming out in 2023.Now under the leadership of James Gunn and Peter Safran as the co-CEOs of DC Studios, the two are in the process of laying out the new plans for DC's very own universe and while that hasn't been revealed yet, the remains of the previous DCEU would still run through this year. Check it all out.The Flash Season 9 – February 8, 2023 Credit: The CWAll The DC Movies And TV Shows Coming Out in 2023 - The Flash Season 9The Scarlet Speedster is on his final run as his television series closes in with the ninth and last season on The CW. Grant Gustin will suit up one last time in The Flash Series/Fans as Barry Allen/ Flash, making it one of the last Arrowverse shows in existence.With 13 episodes, The Flash Season 9 will be divided into at least two "Graphic Novel" storyline arcs, and for the last time, Flash will team up with his friends in his final effort to save the world. As the series ends with the final installment of The Flash, it prepares everyone to say goodbye to a while era of DC shows.The Flash Season 9 will premiere on February 8, 2023 at 8 PM EST on The CW.Harley Quinn: A Very Problematic Valentine's Day Special – February 2023 Credit: HBO MaxAll The DC Movies And TV Shows Coming Out in 2023 - Harley Quinn: A Very Problematic Valentine's Day SpecialFebruary is, indeed, the season of love and this brings the adult animated series of Harley Quinn for a special presentation while waiting for Season 4. The Maiden of Mischief will be having her own Harley Quinn: A Very Problematic Valentine's Day Special.Harley Quinn: A Very Problematic Valentine's Day Special will be having the titular Harley with Poison Ivy as they spend the month of love together with a perspective on how the rest of their gang celebrate Valentine's, too. Hey, love comes in all forms!This mushy-guys Valentine's special will be arriving on HBO Max in February 2023.Superman & Lois Season 3 – March 14, 2023 Credit: The CWAll The DC Movies And TV Shows Coming Out in 2023 - Superman & Lois Season 3Flying through this year is Superman & Lois Season 3 and while Jordan Elsass, who plays Jonathan Kent, exists the show as reported by Deadline, a new actor steps in as Jonathan Kent with Michael Bishop being tapped to join the series for Season 3. Also joining the band is Chad Coleman, known for his roles in The Orville and The Walking Dead, who will be the main villain in Superman & Lois Season 3. Bruno Mannheim, the crime boss of Intergang, also known as Ugly, the son of Moxie Mannheim. Superman & Lois Season 3 will be arriving on March 14, 2023 at 8 PM EST on The CW.Shazam! Fury of the Gods – March 17, 2023 Credit: Warner Bros.All The DC Movies And TV Shows Coming Out in 2023 - Shazam! Fury of the GodsThe first DC movie to come out in 2023 was supposedly going up against Avatar: The Way of Water but that didn't feel right because there is only one spotlight so the DC film made the necessary adjustment to give the characters the attention they all deserve.Shazam! Fury of the Gods marks the return of the Shazam family, as they face du to be reckoned with, the daughter of Atlas, Hera and Kalypso. While it remains a question whether their narrative will be carried over to the plans for the new DC under Gunn and Safran, at the least, the sequel hasn't been canceled.Shazam! Fury of the Gods is slated for a theatrical release on March 17, 2023.READ MORE: James Gunn Teases First DC TV Show In DevelopmentThe Flash – June 16, 2023 Credit: Warner Bros.All The DC Movies And TV Shows Coming Out in 2023 - The FlashFor a really long time, The Flash movie has been under development and in 2023, finally, it may now be crossing the finish line as it debuts on June 16, 2023, and much to the surprise of many, the project remained even with the controversies that Ezra Miller cooked over the last year.Releasing The Flash as planned and promised, the Ezra Miller-led movie will have a Flashpoint-inspired narrative of time travelling, multiple versions of Flash, a multiversal Supergirl, and yes, the return of Michael Keaton as Batman, the saving grace, really.The Flash arrives in theaters on June 16, 2023Blue Beetle – August 18, 2023 Credit: DCAll The DC Movies And TV Shows Coming Out in 2023 - Blue BeetleWhat's supposed to be a straight-to-streaming release on HBO Max just got a huge upgrade as Blue Beetle is now set for a theatrical release featuring Jaime Reyes as the titular character and it teases Khaji Daa! with everything about alien tech throughout. Of all the negatives, Blue Beetle has been blessed with the positives and it will not come out in theaters on August 18, 2023.Aquaman and the Lost Kingdom – December 25, 2023 Credit: Warner Bros.All The DC Movies And TV Shows Coming Out in 2023 - Aquaman and the Lost KingdomPushed too far back is Aquaman and the Lost Kingdom, the last DC movie slated to release in 2023 as the Christmas treat of the franchise to everyone.Jason Momoa will suit up again as the hero of Atlantis with his very own new suit. The movie has faced a lot of setbacks and reshoots considering the case of Amber Heard, the one who plays Mera in the film, and the back and forth decisions on whether to cut her off of the sequel or let her be in it considering that the shake up could affect the sequel, too, right?Aquaman and the Lost Kingdom makes waves in theaters on December 25, 2023.Doom Patrol Season 4 Part 2 – 2023 Credit: HBO MaxAll The DC Movies And TV Shows Coming Out in 2023 - Doom Patrol Season 4 Part 2The first part of Doom Patrol Season 4 is currently airing for six episodes until January 2023, and the series will be facing a break before the next six episodes come out as Doom Patrol Season 4 Part 2 where the team is sent to the future to save the world.Doom Patrol Season 4 Part 1 is currently airing on HBO Max. There is no exact release date yet for Part 2 but it is slated for a 2023 release.Gotham Knights – 2023 Credit: DCAll The DC Movies And TV Shows Coming Out in 2023 - Gotham KnightsAnother The CW show on the list, Gotham Knights is a new series where the setting is after the death of Batman so his adopted son, Turner Hayes, takes on the mantle of being the protector of Gotham City along with Carrie Kelley, Harper Row and her brother Cullen, Stephanie Brown, and Duela Dent.Two-Face/ Haver Dent is expected to be the villain of the series and the Court of Owls could be bringing the wrong side of justice. While it has the same title as the video game, the two are not related. Gotham Knights has no definite release date yet but it comes out in 2023.Are you ready for all the DC releases coming out in 2023?Page 2Is the Dune: Part 2 character Lady Jessica evil? Some fans have been asking this question after watching the film and learning more about her in the sequel.Let's explore the character's arc in the film below.Also Read: Dune Part 2: Does Paul Atreides Become Evil? Character's Journey ExploredLady Jessica's Journey in Dune: Part 2 Credit: Warner Bros.Throughout the events of Dune: Part 2, Lady Jessica is pregnant to Alia Atreides, whose adult version was seen by Paul in his future visions.After she learned from Stilgar that their Reverend Mother was dying, Jessica drank the "Water of Life" to replace her. She successfully transmuted the poison and awakened the consciousness of Alia in her womb.To convince the Fremen in Arrakis about the prophecy of Paul as the messiah, Jessica first went to the weak-minded citizens in the northern part of the planet.Afterward, Jessica embarked on the South and united with the fundamentalist Fremen. She also convinced a local Fremen to let Paul drink the "Water of Life" (which is revealed to be sourced from a young sandworm's bile) when he arrives in the area.In the end, Jessica's manipulation was successful as most of the Fremen were able to believe Paul as their messiah and see him as the savior of the planet.Paul was also able to overthrow the Emperor's throne and become the ruler. With the other Great Houses' refusal to acknowledge his ascendancy, Jessica signified it to be the beginning of Muad'Dib's holy war.Is Lady Jessica Evil? Credit: Warner Bros.The answer will always be dependent on the audience's perspective since her actions in the film can garner different reactions depending on who is watching.For some people, Jessica's actions will be seen as evil since she was manipulating to make a false prophecy happen even if her own son is involved and she is the sole reason for his ascendancy in Arrakis. There will also be a segment of the audience who don't see Jessica's actions as evil since they just consider it as part of her responsibility as a Bene Gesserit. In other words, the morality of the character blurbs the lines of good and evil and there is no proper answer on whether Lady Jessica is evil or not.Perhaps it will be clearer for the audience once they see what happens in the character in Dune Messiah and what the outcomes of her manipulation of Paul's ascendancy will be.Dune: Part 2 is showing in theaters everywhere.Follow our Facebook page for more news coverage and other explainer articles.Read Next: Why Is Dune Part 2 So Loud? Early Screening Leaves Fans Reeling The heroes and villains of the DC Universe are making some noise in 2023, both in movies and in television, so we've made a list of every live-action DC movie and series coming your way next year. As we all know, there are many, many DC projects in various stages of development at any given time, so for this list, we're focusing on the movies and TV shows that have an actual release date or have at least been confirmed as a 2023 release. With that said, let's get on to the good stuff!A quick look at DC movies and TV series coming in 2023:Shazam! Fury of the GodsThe FlashBlue BeetleAquaman and the Lost KingdomThe Flash (Season 9)Superman & Lois (Season 3)Doom Patrol (Season 4)Harley Quinn: A Very Problematic Valentine's Day SpecialGotham Knights (Season 1)DC Movies in 2023Shazam! Fury of the GodsThe first DC movie release of 2023 will be Shazam! Fury of the Gods, striking theaters on March 17. This sequel once again features youngster Billy Batson and his friends, who can all now supersize themselves into superpowered superheroes. And putting all that supersness to the test is the villainous duo Hespera and Kalypso... and a whole lot of fantastical beasts. Release Date: March 17, 2023The FlashThe Flash movie has been in development for a long, long time, and now it's finally going to make it to the finish line on June 16. The trailer shows off a Flashpoint-inspired story featuring what appears to be time travel, multiple Flashes and a Supergirl from another universe, and heavy teases for the return of Michael Keaton's Batman. Yes, actor Ezra Miller's many headline-making, alleged legal issues are troubling, but they did release an apology in August 2022, and all reports indicate that the studio is determined to still release the film as planned.Release Date: June 16, 2023Blue BeetleThe Blue Beetle movie featuring the Jaime Reyes version of the character is set for release on August 18. The film was originally going to be a straight-to-streaming release for HBO Max but was upgraded to a full-on theatrical release, which probably means a bigger budget to show off all the crazy cool things the Blue Beetle suit can do, and the first teaser poster shows off Khaji Daa in all its alien tech glory. Finally, a superhero movie production filled with nothing but good news.Release Date: August 18, 2023Aquaman and the Lost KingdomFinally, the last DC movie of 2023 is Aquaman and the Lost Kingdom, a sequel to the 2018 hit that earned over $1.1 billion at the global box office. Plot details are still slim but a behind-the-scenes look at the film's production teased Arthur Curry will be getting a new supersuit and Mera will once again be getting in on the under-sea action. As far as the villains go, it looks like they're going to break Aquaman's brother Orm out of prison, and Black Manta is still seeking vengeance on Aquaman, but something tells there's an even more dangerous evil coming up from the depths.Release Date: December 25, 2023DC TV Shows in 2023Superman & Lois (Season 3)Superman & Lois is flying into the new year with Season 3. Though we don't know the release date just yet, we do know the 15-episode season will feature the introduction of the villainous organization known as Intergang. And just a heads up, Jordan Elsass, the actor who played Jonathan Kent, stepped away from the role for personal reasons, so the part was recast with actor Michael Bishop now playing the super son.Release Date: 2023The Flash (Season 9)The ninth and final season of the long-running television series The Flash will race to our screens on February 8. Given that pretty much all other remaining Arrowverse shows were canceled in 2022, this last season of The Flash will not only have to wrap up its own story but also, effectively, act as a farewell to an entire era of DC superhero TV. Given all of the heroic exploits we've seen Barry Allen and friends do so far, something tells us they're up to the task. Just be sure to bring tissues.Release Date: February 8, 2023Doom Patrol (Season 4)Doom Patrol is already in the middle of Season 4, with Part 1's six episodes running from December 2022 into January 2023. Then the show will go on hiatus before releasing another six episodes for Part 2. Season 4 sends the team to the future where they must once again save the world, and they also have to deal with singing butts, which would be a really weird thing to say about any other show, but for this one it feels just right. Just try not to imagine what their breath smells like.Release Date: Part 1 - December 2022, Part 2 - TBD 2023Harley Quinn: A Very Problematic Valentine's Day SpecialWhile the adult animated series Harley Quinn has been renewed for Season 4, the next time we'll see the maiden of mischief is in February 2023 for "Harley Quinn: A Very Problematic Valentine's Day Special." We'll see how Harley and Ivy spend the couples' holiday together, and we'll get a peek at how her gang celebrates, too. And given the title and, well, everything we've come to expect from this show, that will surely delight and disgust us in equal measure.Release Date: February 2023 Gotham Knights (Season 1)In this new DC TV series Gotham Knights, Batman is dead, and now it's up to his adopted son, Turner Hayes, to protect his city along with other familiar Gotham faces like Carrie Kelley, Harper Row and her brother Cullen, Stephanie Brown, and Duela Dent. Reports say they'll be up against Harvey Dent, aka Two-Face, as well as the Court of Owls, aka scary bird-masked murders. And before you ask, yes, this show just happens to have the same plot as the 2022 DC video game of the same name, but aside from that similarity, the two Gotham Knights projects are unrelated. Gotham Knights, the TV show, is scheduled to debut sometime in 2023.Release Date: 2023Other Upcoming DC Movies and TV ShowsNow, those are all of the projects that are tied to some sort of release date, but there are plenty more in various stages of planning and development, so keep on top of those with our list of upcoming DC movies and TV shows. If you didn't see a DC project you were looking for, it may be accounted for on our list of canceled DC movies and TV shows. The DCEU as we know it will officially come to an end in 2024. DC is set to release 5 movies in the next 2 years before Warner Brothers Discovery completely reboots the DCU with a brand new slate of movies.Last week, DC Studio's co-CEOs James Gunn and Peter Safran revealed the first chapter of the new DCU, titled Chapter 1: Gods and Monsters. This will begin with a brand new solo Superman project, Superman: Legacy.While it is unclear how much of the old DCEU will carry into the new DCU (Gunn has already announced two characters that will crossover into the reboot), many of the characters and stories from these 5 2023-2024 DC movies will likely not be seen again. Every Upcoming DCEU Movie In Order of Release1. Shazam!: Fury of the Gods (March 17, 2023)2.Zachary Levi and Asher Angel will bring Billy Batson and his superhero alter-ego Shazam back to the big screen in a second Shazam! movie, this one upping the ante for the hero in a solo setting. Along with his entire Shazam family returning to expand on their powers more fully, Billy and his crew will be in for an immense challenge with their latest villains. Hollywood icons Lucy Liu and Helen Mirren will star in this sequel as Kalypso and Hespera, with Rachel Zegler playing Anthea and completing the powerful trio known as the Daughters of Atlas.Trailers have highlighted a great deal of action and drama, and with the threat of the gods looming heavily over the core heroes, this new outing should be an exciting follow-up to one of the most highly-praised DC movies in recent memory.Read about the scrapped Shazam 2 cameo for Dwayne Johnson's Black Adam here.2. The Flash (June 23, 2023) DCEven with the immense drama surrounding The Flash thanks to leading star Ezra Miller's troubles off camera, WB is hoping that their first DCU solo movie will set the stage for an exciting future. Thankfully, Miller's Flash will be far from the only major character, as they'll share the spotlight with Michael Keaton in his return to the cape and cowl of Batman.The DCEU's future will likely not include Ezra Miller as the Flash, but hopefully, his co-stars Sasha Calle, Michael Keaton, and Ben Affleck will return in Gunn's new DCEU. Though the multiverse at some point, find out about the latest exciting update for The Flash's Batman cameo here.3. Blue Beetle (August 18, 2023) DC Comics' first movie moved from an HBO Max debut to a theatrical release. Blue Beetle looks to bring the franchise's first-ever Latino leading man to the big screen with an almost all-Latin cast sharing the spotlight. Xolo Maridueña will take on the leading role of Jaime Reyes, the teenager discovers the Blue Beetle scarab, an alien artifact that morphs into a beetle-inspired suit allowing him to fight crime and even travel through space.Maridueña has an all-star cast surrounding him, including comedy icon George Lopez, Harvey Guillen, Susan Sarandon, and possibly even Ted Lasso's Jason Sudeikis, as they give Blue Beetle his first movie. After being heavily utilized in the animated realm during Young Justice's run, Jaime Reyes will look to make a similar impact in his live-action debut and give the DCU a young hero to build upon for many years to come.Blue Beetle's 2023 release date is unfortunate for the future of the franchise, as it is unclear if the movie will end up in the old DCEU as it was intended or if the movie can somehow find a place in Gunn's new DCU. Catch the best look yet at Blue Beetle's Iron Man-like superhero suit here.4. Aquaman and the Lost Kingdom (December 25, 2023) DC StudiosDealing with its own round of controversy behind the scenes, the sequel to the DCU's biggest financial hit to date looks to push the boundaries of Arthur Curry's world well past the borders of Atlantis. And on top of the drama surrounding leading actress Amber Heard, the movie's release was delayed by nearly a year, although fans now have a small idea of what they'll see on screen.Following that delay, director James Wan started a number of concept art images teasing new worlds that Aquaman 2 will explore, which even includes another battle with Yahya Abdul-Mateen II's Black Manta before the actor becomes Wonder Man for the MCU. Recent reports have indicated that it is unlikely that Jason Momoa will return as Aquaman in the new DCU, but rumors are starting to surface of Momoa playing another DC character, Lobo.Find out about Aquaman 2's chart-topping DC production budget here.5. Joker: Folie à Deux (October 4, 2024) DC StudiosUnlike the other four projects listed, Joker: Folie à Deux does not take place in the DCU (the universe started by Zack Snyder's Man of Steel). Instead, the sequel will continue to explore the standalone universe started by 2019's Joker, and will likely be the last DC movie released before James Gunn's Superman movie presumably kicks off the new DCU.While Arthur lived his life as a sad loner on his first go-around, this time he will be joined in Joker 2 for a musical outing with Lady Gaga as Harley Quinn. Production just recently got underway with director Todd Phillips returning and he has already shared the first look at Arthur's return. Nonetheless, fans of the critically-acclaimed first outing will be waiting a while to see how the story continues with almost two full years to go until release. But will Phoenix, Gaga, or Folie à Deux be able to land the clown franchise another Oscar nod when the 2025 awards season rolls around?Hear what the DCEU's Harley Quinn actress Margot Robbie had to say about Lady Gaga's recent casting here. Cast & crew/Reporter's reviewTriviaFAQBarry Allen uses his super speed to change the past, but his attempt to save his family creates a world without super heroes, forcing him to race for his life in order to save the future.Barry Allen uses his super speed to change the past, but his attempt to save his family creates a world without super heroes, forcing him to race for his life in order to save the future.Sign in to rate and Watchlist for personalized recommendationsSign inSuggest an edit or add missing contentYou have no recently viewed pages Here is the full list of DC movies and TV shows confirmed for release in 2023. Read now and discover! There's no easy way of saying this, but 2022 was a rough year for DC Comics fans. What should have been a time of excitement and celebration for the wide variety of movies and television shows the comic book juggernaut had spawned turned into a time of heartache, as a cancellation after cancellation made it hard to be a DC fan. Warner Bros. Discovery's new direction meant that the HBO Max movie Batgirl would be canceled, but that only set the stage for what would come as the DCEU as we knew it was ripped down and new Co-Chairmen and CEOs of DC Studios James Gunn and Peter Safran sought to build a new one. Even the safe bet DC shows on The CW saw cancellations when that network was sold to new owners Nexstar. Here's hoping that 2023 is a significantly brighter year for DC with an abundance of content coming out. Among that content, we have four theatrical movies, the final season of The Flash, and perhaps the last ever CW DC TV show. DC movies and shows 2023 2023 will kick off for DC programming with The Flash season 9 before the last remaining superhero shows on The CW join it. On The TV end of things, we can also expect the second installments of the fourth seasons of both Titans and Doom Patrol. Here are all of the confirmed DC movies and shows that will debut in 2023: The Flash season 9 – February 8, 2023 Superman and Lois season 3 – March 14, 2023 Gotham Knights season 1 – March 14, 2023 Shazam! Fury of the Gods – March 17, 2023 The Flash (movie) – June 16, 2023 Blue Beetle – August 18, 2023 Aquaman and the Lost Kingdom – December 25, 2023 Titans season 4 part 2 – unknown Doom Patrol season 4 part 2 – unknown HBO Max series Peacemaker has been renewed for a second season, and there is a chance that it could return this year, but 2024 is a more likely option. The same could probably be said for HBO Max's Harley Quinn series too. Which DC movies and shows are you most excited about in 2023? Let us know in the comments below! Where to watch DC movies and shows online For free VivaTV is the best app to watch FHD movies and shows for free. Contents on the app are updated every day. With TeaTV, you can watch all the latest releases that barely hit theaters or streaming services. Download VivaTV and enjoy the best streaming moments! Related posts: The DC Universe offers some fantastic movies, but it recently it had a tumultuous time with new leadership and lots of cancellations. So what can we expect from the DCU in 2023? Here are all the DC movies this year. DC movies 2023: Which of these characters will we see this year? © DVCThe last decade has been everything but easy for DC, watching the biggest competitor Marvel grow massively by building up their Marvel Cinematic Universe. DC, though, struggled heavily copying this way of success, and you just have to compare Justice League to Avengers to see why (to be honest, the Justice League Jack Snyder cut that was released some years later was really okay). To be fair, DC produced some really outstanding movies as well, naming Joker and The Batman here, but it just wasn't enough to create a franchise that made the audience always hunger for more, like Marvel managed to do it. So, a lot has happened for DC and there are many open questions concerning the future of their cinematic universe. James Gunn has teased a complete reboot, but that's still quite a distance away. With that in mind, DC still has some movies to show us next year. By now, we know about four DC movies planned to air in cinemas in 2023. DC MovieRelease DateShazam: Fury of the GodsMarch 17, 2023The FlashJune 16, 2023Blue BeetleAugust 18, 2023Aquaman and the last KingdomDecember 25, 2023 First on our list is Shazam. Seeing Zachary Levy reprising his role as the titular hero was pretty cool, and many other familiar faces made their return, but to be honest the movie was pretty disappointing. The villains especially were underwhelming. After all the incredibly captivating villains we were able to enjoy over the years, DC decided to provide us badly written, underpowered & uncool antagonists they could think of. It feels like a movie written for children, making it actually hard to watch as an adult. This is pretty sad, as there are multiple "kids movies" that adults can still enjoy. It's just that Shazam: Fury of the Gods is not one of them. The Flash (June 16, 2023) After almost 9 years, we are finally able to watch the speedy superhero in his own movie, with Ezra Miller in the role of Barry Allen. With all the drama surrounding Ezraal Miller, it's a wonder this movie even hit theaters! As you can see in the trailer, the breaking of time is the theme of this movie, so it's pretty much a rough adaption of the Flashpoint comic storyline . Simply looking at the movie (not taking into account the drama surrounding it) it's a pretty good movie. It's fun to see the reappearance of Michael Keaton's Batman and despite the CGI being absolutely abysmal, the narrative is pretty well done. We're not getting into any spoilers here, so who knows what other heroes or villains might appear as the fate of the universe hangs in the balance? Blue Beetle is a very young Latino hero, both in the movie and in our world. He's not really on the same level as Superman, Batman etc. but was an integral part of the production budget here.5. Joker: Folie à Deux (October 4, 2024) DC StudiosUnlike the other four projects listed, Joker: Folie à Deux does not take place in the DCU (the universe started by Zack Snyder's Man of Steel). Instead, the sequel will continue to explore the standalone universe started by 2019's Joker, and will likely be the last DC movie released before James Gunn's Superman movie presumably kicks off the new DCU.While Arthur lived his life as a sad loner on his first go-around, this time he will be joined in Joker 2 for a musical outing with Lady Gaga as Harley Quinn. Production just recently got underway with director Todd Phillips returning and he has already shared the first look at Arthur's return. Nonetheless, fans of the critically-acclaimed first outing will be waiting a while to see how the story continues with almost two full years to go until release. But will Phoenix, Gaga, or Folie à Deux be able to land the clown franchise another Oscar nod when the 2025 awards season rolls around?Hear what the DCEU's Harley Quinn actress Margot Robbie had to say about Lady Gaga's recent casting here. Cast & crew/Reporter's reviewTriviaFAQBarry Allen uses his super speed to change the past, but his attempt to save his family creates a world without super heroes, forcing him to race for his life in order to save the future.Barry Allen uses his super speed to change the past, but his attempt to save his family creates a world without super heroes, forcing him to race for his life in order to save the future.Sign in to rate and Watchlist for personalized recommendationsSign inSuggest an edit or add missing contentYou have no recently viewed pages Here is the full list of DC movies and TV shows confirmed for release in 2023. Read now and discover! There's no easy way of saying this, but 2022 was a rough year for DC Comics fans. What should have been a time of excitement and celebration for the wide variety of movies and television shows the comic book juggernaut had spawned turned into a time of heartache, as a cancellation after cancellation made it hard to be a DC fan. Warner Bros. Discovery's new direction meant that the HBO Max movie Batgirl would be canceled, but that only set the stage for what would come as the DCEU as we knew it was ripped down and new Co-Chairmen and CEOs of DC Studios James Gunn and Peter Safran sought to build a new one. Even the safe bet DC shows on The CW saw cancellations when that network was sold to new owners Nexstar. Here's hoping that 2023 is a significantly brighter year for DC with an abundance of content coming out. Among that content, we have four theatrical movies, the final season of The Flash, and perhaps the last ever CW DC TV show. DC movies and shows 2023 2023 will kick off for DC programming with The Flash season 9 before the last remaining superhero shows on The CW join it. On The TV end of things, we can also expect the second installments of the fourth seasons of both Titans and Doom Patrol. Here are all of the confirmed DC movies and shows that will debut in 2023: The Flash season 9 – February 8, 2023 Superman and Lois season 3 – March 14, 2023 Gotham Knights season 1 – March 14, 2023 Shazam! Fury of the Gods – March 17, 2023 The Flash (movie) – June 16, 2023 Blue Beetle – August 18, 2023 Aquaman and the Lost Kingdom – December 25, 2023 Titans season 4 part 2 – unknown Doom Patrol season 4 part 2 – unknown HBO Max series Peacemaker has been renewed for a second season, and there is a chance that it could return this year, but 2024 is a more likely option. The same could probably be said for HBO Max's Harley Quinn series too. Which DC movies and shows are you most excited about in 2023? Let us know in the comments below! Where to watch DC movies and shows online For free VivaTV is the best app to watch FHD movies and shows for free. Contents on the app are updated every day. With TeaTV, you can watch all the latest releases that barely hit theaters or streaming services. Download VivaTV and enjoy the best streaming moments! Related posts: The DC Universe offers some fantastic movies, but it recently it had a tumultuous time with new leadership and lots of cancellations. So what can we expect from the DCU in 2023? Here are all the DC movies this year. DC movies 2023: Which of these characters will we see this year? © DVCThe last decade has been everything but easy for DC, watching the biggest competitor Marvel grow massively by building up their Marvel Cinematic Universe. DC, though, struggled heavily copying this way of success, and you just have to compare Justice League to Avengers to see why (to be honest, the Justice League Jack Snyder cut that was released some years later was really okay). To be fair, DC produced some really outstanding movies as well, naming Joker and The Batman here, but it just wasn't enough to create a franchise that made the audience always hunger for more, like Marvel managed to do it. So, a lot has happened for DC and there are many open questions concerning the future of their cinematic universe. James Gunn has teased a complete reboot, but that's still quite a distance away. With that in mind, DC still has some movies to show us next year. By now, we know about four DC movies planned to air in cinemas in 2023. DC MovieRelease DateShazam: Fury of the GodsMarch 17, 2023The FlashJune 16, 2023Blue BeetleAugust 18, 2023Aquaman and the last KingdomDecember 25, 2023 First on our list is Shazam. Seeing Zachary Levy reprising his role as the titular hero was pretty cool, and many other familiar faces made their return, but to be honest the movie was pretty disappointing. The villains especially were underwhelming. After all the incredibly captivating villains we were able to enjoy over the years, DC decided to provide us badly written, underpowered & uncool antagonists they could think of. It feels like a movie written for children, making it actually hard to watch as an adult. This is pretty sad, as there are multiple "kids movies" that adults can still enjoy. It's just that Shazam: Fury of the Gods is not one of them. The Flash (June 16, 2023) After almost 9 years, we are finally able to watch the speedy superhero in his own movie, with Ezra Miller in the role of Barry Allen. With all the drama surrounding Ezraal Miller, it's a wonder this movie even hit theaters! As you can see in the trailer, the breaking of time is the theme of this movie, so it's pretty much a rough adaption of the Flashpoint comic storyline . Simply looking at the movie (not taking into account the drama surrounding it) it's a pretty good movie. It's fun to see the reappearance of Michael Keaton's Batman and despite the CGI being absolutely abysmal, the narrative is pretty well done. We're not getting into any spoilers here, so who knows what other heroes or villains might appear as the fate of the universe hangs in the balance? Blue Beetle is a very young Latino hero, both in the movie and in our world. He's not really on the same level as Superman, Batman etc. but was an integral part of the production budget here.5. Joker: Folie à Deux (October 4, 2024) DC StudiosUnlike the other four projects listed, Joker: Folie à Deux does not take place in the DCU (the universe started by Zack Snyder's Man of Steel). Instead, the sequel will continue to explore the standalone universe started by 2019's Joker, and will likely be the last DC movie released before James Gunn's Superman movie presumably kicks off the new DCU.While Arthur lived his life as a sad loner on his first go-around, this time he will be joined in Joker 2 for a musical outing with Lady Gaga as Harley Quinn. Production just recently got underway with director Todd Phillips returning and he has already shared the first look at Arthur's return. Nonetheless, fans of the critically-acclaimed first outing will be waiting a while to see how the story continues with almost two full years to go until release. But will Phoenix, Gaga, or Folie à Deux be able to land the clown franchise another Oscar nod when the 2025 awards season rolls around?Hear what the DCEU's Harley Quinn actress Margot Robbie had to say about Lady Gaga's recent casting here. Cast & crew/Reporter's reviewTriviaFAQBarry Allen uses his super speed to change the past, but his attempt to save his family creates a world without super heroes, forcing him to race for his life in order to save the future.Barry Allen uses his super speed to change the past, but his attempt to save his family creates a world without super heroes, forcing him to race for his life in order to save the future.Sign in to rate and Watchlist for personalized recommendationsSign inSuggest an edit or add missing contentYou have no recently viewed pages Here is the full list of DC movies and TV shows confirmed for release in 2023. Read now and discover! There's no easy way of saying this, but 2022 was a rough year for DC Comics fans. What should have been a time of excitement and celebration for the wide variety of movies and television shows the comic book juggernaut had spawned turned into a time of heartache, as a cancellation after cancellation made it hard to be a DC fan. Warner Bros. Discovery's new direction meant that the HBO Max movie Batgirl would be canceled, but that only set the stage for what would come as the DCEU as we knew it was ripped down and new Co-Chairmen and CEOs of DC Studios James Gunn and Peter Safran sought to build a new one. Even the safe bet DC shows on The CW saw cancellations when that network was sold to new owners Nexstar. Here's hoping that 2023 is a significantly brighter year for DC with an abundance of content coming out. Among that content, we have four theatrical movies, the final season of The Flash, and perhaps the last ever CW DC TV show. DC movies and shows 2023 2023 will kick off for DC programming with The Flash season 9 before the last remaining superhero shows on The CW join it. On The TV end of things, we can also expect the second installments of the fourth seasons of both Titans and Doom Patrol. Here are all of the confirmed DC movies and shows that will debut in 2023: The Flash season 9 – February 8, 2023 Superman and Lois season 3 – March 14, 2023 Gotham Knights season 1 – March 14, 2023 Shazam! Fury of the Gods – March 17, 2023 The Flash (movie) – June 16, 2023 Blue Beetle – August 18, 2023 Aquaman and the Lost Kingdom – December 25, 2023 Titans season 4 part 2 – unknown Doom Patrol season 4 part 2 – unknown HBO Max series Peacemaker has been renewed for a second season, and there is a chance that it could return this year, but 2024 is a more likely option. The same could probably be said for HBO Max's Harley Quinn series too. Which DC movies and shows are you most excited about in 2023? Let us know in the comments below! Where to watch DC movies and shows online For free VivaTV is the best app to watch FHD movies and shows for free. Contents on the app are updated every day. With TeaTV, you can watch all the latest releases that barely hit theaters or streaming services. Download VivaTV and enjoy the best streaming moments! Related posts: The DC Universe offers some fantastic movies, but it recently it had a tumultuous time with new leadership and lots of cancellations. So what can we expect from the DCU in 2023? Here are all the DC movies this year. DC movies 2023: Which of these characters will we see this year? © DVCThe last decade has been everything but easy for DC, watching the biggest competitor Marvel grow massively by building up their Marvel Cinematic Universe. DC, though, struggled heavily copying this way of success, and you just have to compare Justice League to Avengers to see why (to be honest, the Justice League Jack Snyder cut that was released some years later was really okay). To be fair, DC produced some really outstanding movies as well, naming Joker and The Batman here, but it just wasn't enough to create a franchise that made the audience always hunger for more, like Marvel managed to do it. So, a lot has happened for DC and there are many open questions concerning the future of their cinematic universe. James Gunn has teased a complete reboot, but that's still quite a distance away. With that in mind, DC still has some movies to show us next year. By now, we know about four DC movies planned to air in cinemas in 2023. DC MovieRelease DateShazam: Fury of the GodsMarch 17, 2023The FlashJune 16, 2023Blue BeetleAugust 18, 2023Aquaman and the last KingdomDecember 25, 2023 First on our list is Shazam. Seeing Zachary Levy reprising his role as the titular hero was pretty cool, and many other familiar faces made their return, but to be honest the movie was pretty disappointing. The villains especially were underwhelming. After all the incredibly captivating villains we were able to enjoy over the years, DC decided to provide us badly written, underpowered & uncool antagonists they could think of. It feels like a movie written for children, making it actually hard to watch as an adult. This is pretty sad, as there are multiple "kids movies" that adults can still enjoy. It's just that Shazam: Fury of the Gods is not one of them. The Flash (June 16, 2023) After almost 9 years, we are finally able to watch the speedy superhero in his own movie, with Ezra Miller in the role of Barry Allen. With all the drama surrounding Ezraal Miller, it's a wonder this movie even hit theaters! As you can see in the trailer, the breaking of time is the theme of this movie, so it's pretty much a rough adaption of the Flashpoint comic storyline . Simply looking at the movie (not taking into account the drama surrounding it) it's a pretty good movie. It's fun to see the reappearance of Michael Keaton's Batman and despite the CGI being absolutely abysmal, the narrative is pretty well done. We're not getting into any spoilers here, so who knows what other heroes or villains might appear as the fate of the universe hangs in the balance? Blue Beetle is a very young Latino hero, both in the movie and in our world. He's not really on the same level as Superman, Batman etc. but was an integral part of the production budget here.5. Joker: Folie à Deux (October 4, 2024) DC StudiosUnlike the other four projects listed, Joker: Folie à Deux does not take place in the DCU (the universe started by Zack Snyder's Man of Steel). Instead, the sequel will continue to explore the standalone universe started by 2019's Joker, and will likely be the last DC movie released before James Gunn's Superman movie presumably kicks off the new DCU.While Arthur lived his life as a sad loner on his first go-around, this time he will be joined in Joker 2 for a musical outing with Lady Gaga as Harley Quinn. Production just recently got underway with director Todd Phillips returning and he has already shared the first look at Arthur's return. Nonetheless, fans of the critically-acclaimed first outing will be waiting a while to see how the story continues with almost two full years to go until release. But will Phoenix, Gaga, or Folie à Deux be able to land the clown franchise another Oscar nod when the 2025 awards season rolls around?Hear what the DCEU's Harley Quinn actress Margot Robbie had to say about Lady Gaga's recent casting here. Cast & crew/Reporter's reviewTriviaFAQBarry Allen uses his super speed to change the past, but his attempt to save his family creates a world without super heroes, forcing him to race for his life in order to save the future.Barry Allen uses his super speed to change the past, but his attempt to save his family creates a world without super heroes, forcing him to race for his life in order to save the future.Sign in to rate and Watchlist for personalized recommendationsSign inSuggest an edit or add missing contentYou have no recently viewed pages Here is the full list of DC movies and TV shows confirmed for release in 2023. Read now and discover! There's no easy way of saying this, but 2022 was a rough year for DC Comics fans. What should have been a time of excitement and celebration for the wide variety of movies and television shows the comic book juggernaut had spawned turned into a time of heartache, as a cancellation after cancellation made it hard to be a DC fan. Warner Bros. Discovery's new direction meant that the HBO Max movie Batgirl would be canceled, but that only set the stage for what would come as the DCEU as we knew it was ripped down and new Co-Chairmen and CEOs of DC Studios James Gunn and Peter Safran sought to build a new one. Even the safe bet DC shows on The CW saw cancellations when that network was sold to new owners Nexstar. Here's hoping that 2023 is a significantly brighter year for DC with an abundance of content coming out. Among that content, we have four theatrical