Between the sheets music meaning

Between the sheets songs. Between the sheets sheet music. Between the sheets music. Between the sheets piano. Between the sheets music video.

"Range" is the total number of notes that an instrument is capable of producing. For example, most modern pianos have a range of 88 notes (from A0 to C8; see the scientific notation of tone). The range should not be confused with the record, which is the general step character of the voice of an instrument (i.e. a low guitar has a lower record than a guitar). The standard ranges of electric keyboards are: 49 notes, from C2 to C6 61 notes, from C2 to C7 76 notes, from E1 to G7, many keys have a range of 5 octaves, from F1 to F6; Organs range from C2 to C7. Range should not be confused with registration, which is a different concept. Dynamic signs are musical notations used to mean in which volume the note or phrase should be made in. The dynamic signs not only dictate volume (sound or softness), but also change in volume over time (strong or softer). For example, the volume could change slowly or abruptly, and at different rates. Dynamic signs can be found on the music sheets for any instrument. Instruments as different as cello, piano, French horn and xylophone can play notes in different volumes and therefore be subject to dynamic signs. There is no record that confirms who was the first composer to use or invent dynamic signs, but Giovanni Gabrieli was one of the first users of musical notations. Gabrieli was a Venetian composer during the Renaissance and the early stages of the Baroque era. During the romantic period, composers began to use more dynamic signs and increased their variety. The table below lists dynamic signs of common use.
