

I'm not a robot

Best man speech example

If you need some inspiration before writing your best man speech, these examples are here to help get your creative juices flowing. Whether you're his brother or best friend, you'll find a speech that resonates with you. We've included both sentimental and funny speeches for each section, so you can use their structure while referencing our best man speech tips to craft your own show-stopping speech. These examples are for best men who have known the groom for a long time. Good evening everyone. My name is Zak, and my longtime friend Scott has chosen me as his best man. They say good things come to those who wait, and that's certainly true for Scott - he had to wait until college to meet me, and then until 30 to find love with Natalie. Over the 15 years I've known him, Scott has been patient and never afraid to wait for what's right. His marriage to Natalie is a great example of that. Scott can be trying at times, as his college roommate I know firsthand - remember the time he bought new socks instead of doing laundry? Or when he did his chem lab experiment in our dorm room, making it smell like rotten eggs for a week? Despite that, Scott is a true friend who's always there to help or celebrate. And that's how I know Scott and Natalie will be great together. In the three years I've known her, I've realized she and Scott are kindred spirits - always there when someone needs them. They're examples of real love, and I wish them all the best for their future as husband and wife. So let's raise our glasses and toast this awesome couple - to the bride and groom! Hi, my name is Ethan, and I'm honored to be the best man and Brad's best friend. I'd like to thank him for choosing me as his best man, maybe just because he finally admits I'm the best. We've had a long and competitive friendship since third grade - we competed over rocks, skateboarding tricks, and even football. Even though I became quarterback in our senior year, Brad was the star of the team as left tackle. He's always been the ultimate protector, and I'm sure he'll do the same for his future wife. I've had my fair share of close calls on the field thanks to Brad's quick thinking and support, more times than I can count! He's the kind of guy you'd want by your side, whether it's on or off the pitch. And it's not just his impressive physical attributes that make him stand out - he's got a heart of gold and always puts others first. While he may have been a standout player in our school days, he's an even better friend. He's got a great sense of humor and loves to have fun, but he's also super loyal and caring towards his family and friends. One thing I really admire about Brad is that when you need someone to listen, he's always there for you - and when he does speak up, people take notice! That's probably why he makes such an amazing football coach today, as each of the young men he coaches look up to him like a mentor. On a personal note, I feel incredibly lucky to have Brad as my friend, but what I think he's even luckier for is having Charlotte in his life - she's not only beautiful, but she's got the kind of kindness and compassion that makes her an amazing partner. Together, they're like two peas in a pod, and their relationship is truly something we can all aspire to. So here's to Brad and Charlotte - one of the most loving and supportive couples I've ever had the pleasure of meeting! As for my speech, I promise not to spill too many secrets about Mason tonight (laughs). But let me tell you, growing up with him as a little brother was an adventure in itself. From painting on my book report when I was 10 to taking apart my scooter and breaking it beyond repair when I was 12 - yes, those were some of the tougher moments! However, one of my favorite memories of Mason is when he tried to swing from tree-to-tree like Tarzan in our backyard at age 8. Needless to say, he didn't quite live up to the legendary Tarzan's athletic prowess (laughs), but I did manage to catch it all on camera - with a little help from him finding and tying the ropes to the trees! To Brad and Charlotte again, congratulations on your love and commitment to each other - you're both truly inspiring. Cheers to the happy couple! James stood at the podium, beaming with pride, as he addressed his brother Trevor's wedding guests. Lucky, their Golden Retriever, had witnessed a memorable moment from their past when Mason fell while playing Tarzan. Twelve years later, Mason's daredevil streak led him to convince James to accompany him on a bungee jumping adventure for college graduation celebrations. Fortunately, this experience was much smoother than the first Tarzan incident. James couldn't be happier that Mason had found a partner in Jocelyn, who shares their adventurous spirit and zest for life. While he's thrilled about Mason's happiness, he's relieved that his little brother has finally stopped pestering him to join in on wild escapades. Instead, James welcomes Jocelyn into their family with open arms. As best man, James looked back at childhood memories of admiring Trevor's courage and kindness. He was 4 when Trevor taught him to ride a bike, while he was 10. The same year, Trevor helped James learn long division. As James grew older, he realized how much his big brother had become like a role model. Trevor's love for Serena is truly inspiring, just as their friendship and family values are. James considers the couple's bond a perfect example of what it means to cherish each other and prioritize relationships. As James concluded his speech, he expressed his heartfelt wishes for a long and happy life together, free from injuries, and filled with many more adventures. My bro Rob's been like a superstar since we were kids, everyone loved him. Teachers and parents alike said "why can't you be more like Rob." Even our parents thought he was pretty cool. I'm just here to remind you that they didn't stop trying to raise the perfect kid with me three years later. As the younger bro, my job's always been to give Rob a hard time. He was the brainy and athletic one while I was the comedian. Now, I've always looked up to Rob, not just 'cause he's older but because he's an amazing person. He's super smart but humble, a talented athlete with great sportsmanship. What really sets him apart is his genuine care for others. Laura's got the same kind heart and it was their compassion that brought them together as volunteers. They make each other laugh, too. We're glad to welcome Laura to our family. To Rob and Laura! Being the best man can be a big responsibility - congrats on taking it on! A good speech is about being real, sharing some stories, and not trying to be someone you're not. Just relax, share your thoughts, and maybe even make people laugh or get emotional. Here are some tips to help you out: Start strong with a joke or a story that'll grab the crowd's attention. Keep it short - aim for under 7 minutes! Be yourself and don't try to be too fancy. Avoid sharing anything awkward or embarrassing. Practice your speech out loud until it feels natural. Focus on the love and connection between the couple, not just some fancy words. Take your time and speak from the heart. To give a killer best man speech, speed up or slow down your pace depending on the audience, but don't be boring - pause for breath between key points. Stick to these tips to keep guests entertained and engaged instead of checking their phones. structure of a best man speech a typical format consists of 7 parts: introduction, thank yous, talk about the groom, mention the bride, talk about the couple together, words of advice or wish for the future, and toast. best man speech template start by introducing yourself and sharing how you know the groom. for example, "i've known mark since we were both rocking bowl cuts in 6th grade." then express gratitude to the couple, guests, and hosts for their presence and effort. share a story that showcases the groom's personality, such as a funny memory or a moment where he had your back. this helps paint a picture of why he's an important person to you. shift focus to the bride by complimenting her not just on looks but also on who she is as a person. mention the first time you met her, how she brings out the best in the groom, or how happy she makes him. zoom out and talk about them as a team. share a story that shows their connection or describe what makes their relationship strong, offer heartfelt or funny words of advice for their future together. think of it as your message for what lies ahead. end strong by raising your glass and leading the room in a toast. keep it punchy and positive, such as "to love, laughter, and a lifetime supply of snacks." best man speech examples here are some full-length best man speech examples that sound like real people talking, not robots. you can find options with laughs, emotion, or a little of both. just swap out names, tweak a few lines, and you're good to go! each one takes about 5-7 minutes when spoken. example #1: the funny-but-sweet lifelong friend "good evening everyone. i've had the honor—and the lifelong responsibility—of being [groom's name]'s best friend for over 20 years." over my granola bar, a beautiful friendship blossomed between us. since then, we've navigated life's ups and downs together - the bad haircuts, terrible jobs, and chaos in between. but one constant has remained: [groom's name]'s unwavering presence, sometimes late, often frazzled, yet always there.now, i've witnessed [groom's name] attempt to cook spaghetti in a coffee pot, set up a tent with duct tape and confidence, and ignore instructions for assembling furniture. he approaches life in his own unique way - the hard way, sometimes, but always figuring it out. then came [bride's name].the moment [groom's name] spoke about her, i sensed something different. he said she made sense of things; life felt lighter, easier, and more authentic when she was around. meeting [bride's name] only confirmed what he meant - she's intelligent, witty, and unfazed by the chaos that often follows [groom's name]. that's when i knew they were meant to be.[groom's name] has become more grounded since meeting [bride's name]; he's more thoughtful and even shows up on time now. real connections do that - they bring out the best in each other.[bride's name], thank you for seeing the good in him that we've always known was there. you're strong when he needs support, silly when he needs to laugh, and you balance each other perfectly. you make each other better, and marriage is about growing together, laughing through the absurd, arguing over takeout menus, and coming back to each other. so let's raise a glass. to [groom's name] and [bride's name], for the joy they bring, the strength they share, and the love that's just beginning.to the lovely couple! the couple has found a special bond, one that allows them to laugh easily and support each other without hesitation. they've built a strong and honest relationship, one that looks effortless but requires effort from within. i've never seen my brother happier with his partner, and that means everything to me. the love they share is worth waiting for, a partnership that lifts each other up. to [groom's name] and [bride's name], may your days be filled with shared jokes, peace at night, and life's real moments that matter!!! looking back on the day, it felt like a sense of relief had finally settled in. the late arrivals arrived earlier, their wild plans took shape, and there was an unmistakable glint in his eye that i hadn't seen before. it wasn't just that he was head over heels in love; it was that he'd found someone who matched him perfectly - someone who could push him to be his best self, laugh with him, and keep him grounded when his stories started to get out of hand. i met [bride's name] for the first time, and i knew exactly why [groom's name] fell for her. she was sharp, kind, funny - and she didn't let any of his nonsense slide. but it wasn't just her toughness that impressed me; it was how she saw him - not just the charming surface, but all the parts he kept hidden. and she loved him for it. together, they were balanced. they didn't try to one-up each other; they just worked together, listening, teasing, supporting, and building. it was a connection that didn't need a spotlight - it shone bright on its own. marriage isn't perfect, but watching these two, i knew they'd face anything with patience, love, and laughter. so [groom's name], thank you for being the rock people count on. and [bride's name], thank you for bringing out a version of him we all knew was inside - you helped him find it. let's raise a glass to a couple who proves that quiet strength can be just as powerful as loud displays of love. let their relationship show us that laughter really is the glue that holds everything together. to [groom's name] and [bride's name]—may your life be filled with honest conversations, silly jokes, spontaneous adventures, and a love that feels just right, no matter what. they had this special kind of connection where people only truly care about each other. it wasn't showy or superficial, just effortless and genuine. that's what real love looks like - not just grand moments or perfect social media posts - but knowing how to be there for each other when things get tough. they've built something strong together, and it's clear they actually like each other, which is kinda the whole point. [groom's name] and [bride's name], you're a team. you're equals who make each other feel safe and understood. your love isn't about shouting it from the rooftops; it speaks for itself through your actions and how you treat each other. so here's to that kind of love - steady, fun, soft, and strong. it turns everyday moments into memories and reminds everyone watching what real connection looks like. let's raise a glass to [groom's name] and [bride's name]. they're an inspiration for growing up, staying true, and finding someone who fits perfectly with you in all the best ways. --- Good evening everyone. As someone who's been through marriage before, i want to share some thoughts about what [groom's name] and [bride's name] have. it's something real. i've known [groom's name] for a long time - seen him at his most confident, stubborn, and even ridiculous. but he's always been reliable, someone you know will be there when you need help. being married myself, i know love isn't just about grand gestures; it's about the little things like doing chores without being asked or choosing to laugh in tough moments. [groom's name] and [bride's name] already get this. from the outside, it looks like they have a great relationship - the way they look at each other, their laughs, planning an entire day without losing their minds. but if you spend time around them, you notice the small things like how she instinctively reaches for his hand or how he pauses to make sure she's heard. these are the moments that build something lasting. they've already found a rhythm in their relationship - a deep friendship and partnership based on respect, not performance. it's rare, and it's worth celebrating. my advice is to keep showing up for each other, laughing even when you don't feel like it, saying thank you often, and never stopping learning who the other person is becoming because people grow and that's beautiful. let's raise a glass to [groom's name] and [bride's name], may their love stay steady, surprising, and full of life. looking back on his life for many years has been a journey of laughter, growth, and self-discovery. cheers! Good evening, everybody. I'd like to start by sayin' what an honor it is to be standin' here today as the best man. Not just because I get to celebrate this amazing couple, but also 'cause I've had the privilege of watchin' [groom's name] grow into the incredible person he is now. It's not every day you get to witness somethin' so special - a love that feels truly meant to be. I've known [groom's name] for a long time, and I've seen him go through all sorts of ups and downs. But one thing's always shined through: he's one of the most thoughtful people I've ever met. He remembers the little things about you - like your favorite coffee order or the way you take your sandwich. That kind of attention is truly rare. When [bride's name] came into his life, I noticed somethin' special right away. He started listenin' even more deeply to others, and he was willin' to grow and change for her sake. Not because he thought it was what he was supposed to do, but because she brought out the best in him. What [groom's name] and [bride's name] have is somethin' truly beautiful. They're one of those couples who just seem to work together seamlessly. You can see it in the way they look at each other when no one else is around - all happy and content. And you can feel their love even in the quiet moments, like when they're laughin' together or holdin' hands. Love isn't always about big, flashy gestures. It's about showin' up every day, even when it's hard. It's about choosin' each other through all the little things that make life worth livin'. And [groom's name] and [bride's name] have found that kind of love in each other. To [groom's name], i want to say thank you for bein' such a rock, even when life got crazy. You're an amazing partner, and i know you'll keep growin' together with [bride's name]. And to [bride's name], i just want to say thank you for lovin' him so fully and fiercely. You bring out the best in him, and it's clear that your love is the real deal. So here's to [groom's name] and [bride's name]: may your love continue to be a source of strength and joy in all the seasons of life. May you always find comfort in each other's arms, and may your love stay soft and strong no matter what comes your way! Cheers to that incredible couple! [bride's name] and [groom's name], from the start it was clear they were meant to be together. They had an ease about them, like they already knew where things were headed. And it wasn't just on the surface - they shared a deeper connection that went beyond words. They found common ground in everything, from weekend plans to dinner choices. That kind of harmony is hard to fake. [bride's name] didn't just fit into the circle, she strengthened it. She added a new dynamic and challenged [groom's name] when needed, but also laughed with him and called him out when he deserved it. Their relationship isn't about grand gestures - it's about the rhythm of everyday life. And they've built something special, something that works without needing to impress. We're not surprised by how well they are together, because we saw this coming from a long time ago. But what makes this even more meaningful is that it wasn't a whirlwind romance - it was something built with care and intention over time. So let's raise a glass to two people who proved love doesn't have to be complicated to be strong, like a big deal at the time, but it turned into years of friendship, support, and laughter with [groom's name], who is like a brother to me. We've had our share of disagreements, but what stands out is his consistency, honesty, and realism. He's not afraid to tell you what you need to hear, even if it's awkward. When he met [bride's name], i saw something click - not in a dramatic way, but in a quiet, unmistakable way. They just got along, supported each other, and made each other better. Watching them together is like seeing two people who speak the same language without needing words. To [groom's name] and [bride's name], thank you for showing us what love looks like when it's honest, steady, and real. From the moment they got together, i knew this one was different. [Groom's name] is many things - confident, creative, and slightly overconfident - but with [bride's name], he's calm, grounded, and happy. She doesn't fix him; she gives him space to be better. Watching them grow has been a highlight in my life, reminding me that quiet, consistent love can win in a loud world. Thanks for proving me right, and more importantly, thanks for showing us true great love stories don't have to be dramatic - they just have to be real. Let's raise a glass to [groom's name] and [bride's name], who've helped each other bring out the best in themselves. They sense each other's thoughts before even speaking, their gazes conveying more than words ever could. I've known [groom's name] for years; he's always been steady, dependable, and a bit stubborn - but being around [bride's name] brought out the best in him. He didn't change much, but his calmness and focus deepened, and happiness became a part of him that wasn't superficial. It was like he found a sense of inner peace. I don't think [bride's name] changed him; she gave him room to grow, offering support when needed, laughter when things got too serious, and quiet encouragement that made all the difference. The way they understand each other is truly unique - it's not something you see every day. Watching them together feels like watching a dance, with their own special rhythm and pace. It looks effortless because they choose to be there for each other, even on tough days. Marriage isn't about being perfect or pretending; it's about showing up, listening, being genuine, and holding space for each other. I've seen [groom's name] grow so much in the past few years - and i believe that growth is because of how he loves [bride's name], and vice versa. Their love isn't loud or flashy, but it's strong and solid. Relationships like theirs remind us that true love isn't about grand gestures; it's about being consistent, taking care, giving time, and remembering the little things. So tonight, i want to raise a glass not to the biggest or loudest love stories, but to those that last - building slowly, holding strong, and meaning something every day. Cheers to [groom's name] and [bride's name] for showing us what true love looks like. May their love continue to grow in quiet strength, shared laughter, and beauty that doesn't need to try hard.