(February 2024) (Learn how and when to remove this message) In the 12th century Aztecas moved away from Aztlan looking for a new land to settle. In this travel they founded several towns. Zula (meaning quals territory) was one of this towns established on the shore of the Lerma river. In 1380, Tariácuri purepecha's king, conquered the town of Zula and named it Aramutaro, which means place with caves. Almost two centuries later, Antonio de Villarreal serving Nuño de Guzmán took control of the town on the San Sebastian's day of 1530 (January 20), so renaming the town as "San Sebastián de Aramutarrillo". From 1530 to 1687, San Sebastian was in total oblivion, victim of slavery and ignorance; nevertheless there were two historic facts, which changed course for the town, one political affair and another religious matter. The religious matter refers to a finding of a branch from a tree resembling Jesus Christ on the Cross. This happened the midnight of Christmas Eve on a place called Buena Huerta. The towns in its surrounding asked for the Jesus Christ image to be taken to their churches. San Sebastián de Aramutarrillo was selected to keep the Christ image. After that, the Christ image was called "Señor de La Piedad" (Lord of Mercy) where Templo del Señor de La Piedad was built in its honor, which also has the biggest dome in the country. The political affair was the movement of political offices from Tlazazalca to San Sebastian de Aramutarrillo. This causes that many people came to offer merchandise, crafts, etc. In this way the town was officially founded in 1692, when Juan López de Aguirre named it as La Piedad. (February 2024) (Learn how and when to remove this message) Places of interest include the town center with its kiosco (bandstand) built with quarried stone, the gateways, and the Señor de La Piedad church, which boasts perhaps the biggest dome in the country. Also of note are the Cabadas Bridge and the 30-metre-high El Salto waterfall. The local zoo and "La Torre de la Gaviota" located at the Ciudad del Sol neighborhood, are also places of interest in La Piedad. There are also urban parks such as Morelos Park and La Placa park. The city is known because of its colorful Rebozos, and the singer José Alfredo Jiménez made it more famous with the song "El Perro Negro" ("The Black Dog"). La Piedad is a hub for agricultural products. The town was once known as the center of the Mexican pork industry, and still plays an important part in that industry. However, La Piedad has recently moved its economy towards textiles. Major textil manufacturers include Olmecca, Marval and Manriquez. Surrounding towns are Santa Ana, Yurécuaro, Degollado, Numanan, and Ecuandureo. La Piedad is also the headquarters for veterinary pharmaceuticals company LaPisa and industrial turbine manufacturer Turbomaquinas and Famaq. Also there is an important candy factory named Cabadas and sausage factories like Nu-tres, Delta and Bafar (former Parma). Most companies are family owned and operated. These are Saldaña and García, the latter owns Turbomaquinas S.A. de C.V., FAMAQ, Turboalaciones S.A. de C.V. and the former owns Grupo Kasto. There are 569 companies registered in the municipality, which puts La Piedad in the top four cities in the state with the greatest number of companies, after Morelia, Uruapan, and Zamora. Ferromex Railway and Kansas City Southern de México crosses La Piedad allowing other companies to settle around in the future. Currently the municipality has pre-school institutions, elementary, middle and high school, and the following 6 colleges: Colegio de Michoacán Instituto Tecnológico de La Piedad Universidad de León campus La Piedad Centro de estudios universitarios Veracruz (Univer) campus La Piedad Universidad del Valle de Atemajac campus La Piedad Instituto Michoacano de Ciencias de la Educación (IMCED) Additionally there is a House of Culture, the cultural center piedadense and the Higher School of Music.
