The site credits printed in 1685, the paraphrase of Baxter's New Testament was the work of Richard Baxter, a Puritan who was known for his numerous writings on practical piety. Apparently, Baxter defamed the Church of England in this paraphrase and was imprisoned and severely punished as a result, but was eventually released. The text contains doctrinal and practical notes in all that are characteristically simple and short but intended to help the reader understand the text. His paraphrase was also intended to help families in daily reading and help all people read and understand the New Testament. Interestingly, our copy contains a citation pointed to the evidence of the Baxter court. Title Page An account of the reason and use of this paraphrase. The Adverawel, Ne Vuanza sits Page. Wrong.
